Morrison & Foerster Releases Advance@Work™ Application for iPhones and iPads

Sexual Harassment Training Requirements and Workplace Bullying for Private Employers Within the United States

By Sharon Parella and Tiffany Ma

Morrison & Foerster has recently released its new application for iPhones and iPads, entitled “Sexual Harassment and Workplace Bullying Guide – Advance@Work™ – Sexual Harassment Training Requirements and Workplace Bullying for Private Employers Within the United States.”

The app is intended to be a quick and easy resource for obtaining information about the federal and state requirements for sexual harassment training applicable to employers conducting business within the United States. In addition, the app provides valuable information about workplace bullying and how an employer can recognize and correct an abusive work environment.

The app also describes the various training programs offered by the firm relating to sexual harassment and discrimination laws, as well as workplace bullying. These programs include: “Sexual Harassment and Anti-Discrimination Training” for groups, individuals and expatriate employees, “How to Investigate a Claim of Sexual Harassment or Discrimination” and “Workplace Bullying Training for Managers and Supervisors.” The app is an excellent business tool for all private employers, large or small, domestic or multi-national with offices in the United States.

You can download the app here.
